

David Werklund is the founder and chairman of Tervita Corporation (formerly Canadian Crude Separators) and the founder of Werklund Capital Corporation.

David Werklund is investing $25 million in the new Werklund School of Education.

Leading education for a connected world.

Known for his commitment to strong leadership principles and lifelong learning, Werklund credits his work ethic and can-do attitude to his upbringing on the family farm near Valleyview, Alberta.

He believes teachers have the power to change lives by understanding and working with the unique strengths of each student.

His dream? To build an educational system that addresses the individual needs of all learners, at all levels.

The Werklund School of Education will transform educational practice locally, nationally and internationally.

This donation—the largest single gift to an education faculty in Canadian history—will support new scholarships and research opportunities, better technology and additional resources to improve the way we teach and learn.

Thank you David Werklund.
